Take Your Own New Age Piano Journey!

Dear Hopeful Student; there's something special about being able to just sit down at the piano and play. Especially when the music isn't planned. We allow ourselves the freedom to just be at the piano and great things start to happen.

To create your own piano journey, you need to know a little about chords and how to play them. That's pretty much it. I never understood why teachers make their students wait so long before they can dive in creatively at the piano. Especially since all it takes is giving students the right kind of limits so they can freely express themselves.

In the sample lesson 'November Sunrise' below (full lesson available to members) (<https://youtu.be/NcNOlyEInIw>) you have just two chords to play with and you have a way to play them. The chords are learned and practiced. Then you're encouraged to explore these materials - to play, improvise, and see what comes up.

Explore is really the idea here as so many students want to force their way into improvisation. You see, it really is all about attitude here. And I can't think of a better quote to illustrate this than "In the beginner's mind there are many possibilities, in the experts mind there are few."

It really is true and it's also a good thing because it means you don't have to be an expert to experience the joy of piano improvisation. On the contrary, the freshest sounding music can come from someone who does not have years of theory and training under their belt.

To take your own piano journey remember that's it's not about how much you know. It's really about how willing you are to let go and allow the music itself to take over. Then, it's an easy thing to do!

Warmest wishes,
Edward Weiss
